THE MERCHANT'S HEART—AN EASTERN TALE.

Not from the "Arabian Nights."

(CONCLUDED.)

Under this poor pretence he mounted his mule, and rode towards the mountains and began his walk at the usual place, and repaired to the cave, and passed the night there, and was out on the meadow before dawn. He soon saw four or five cows driven out of the gorge, and the girl following them, leading the frolicsome Naharah.

'There is no need for thee to-day, stranger,' said she, smiling playfully, 'unless thou wilt drive my herd down to the water to drink, and take care that the black one goes in first, or else she will gore the others.'

Upon this, Matthias took the branch of a tree and began to cry, 'Hoo! hoo!' like a herdsman, and to beat the flanks of the black cow, which scampered away, and led a long chase round the meadow; so that he did not come back until all the other animals had taken their morning drink, and the girl was sitting on the bank laughing at him, and wreathing a crown of flowers to deck the horns of Naharah.

'Thou dost not know thy new business,' said she, to Matthias as he came up out of breath; whereupon he began to curse the cow which had led him that dance, and to think that he had made himself ridiculous in the eyes of the girl. However, they were soon sitting side by side in a pleasant talk, and the merchant learned that the name of the bond maiden was Carine.

By this time he had quite made up his mind to marry her, if she would have him; but, although reflecting upon his wealth and her poverty, it seemed scarcely probable that she should refuse, his modesty was so great that he dared not venture to talk of love. They parted early, and Matthias went away, promising to return on the morrow. He did so; and for many weeks continued these meetings, in which, for the first time since his youth, he found real happiness.—At length, one day he took courage, and told Carine that he intended to take her away and marry her, and make her the mistress of his wealth.

'My lord,' said she, with simple surprise, 'has madness stricken thee? Dost thou not known that I am a bond maiden, and that there is no power that can free me?'

'Money can free thee, child,' said Matthias.

'Not so,' replied she, 'for it is an ancient privilege of this monastery that bondmen and bondwomen shall for ever appertain to it. If any freeman cast his eyes upon one of us, and desires to marry her, he must quit his state, and become a slave, he and his descendants for ever, to the monastery. This is why I was not married last year to Skandar, the porker who offered twenty pigs for my fredom, but who refused to give up his liberty.'

Matthias internally thanked Heaven for having given an independent spirit to the porker, and replied smiling:

'Believe me, Carine, that the fathers love money—they all do—and I shall purchase thee as my wife.'

'It is nonsense,' said she, shaking her head, 'they refused twenty pigs.'

'I will give twenty sacks of gold, baby,' cried Matthias, enraged at her obstinacy.

Carine replied, that she was not worth so much; and that, if she were, it was no use talking of the matter, for the fathers would not sell her.

He was mistaken. The monastery of Selafka was the richest in all the east, and the head of it was the most self-willed of men. He cut short the propositions of the merchant—who went straight to him that very day—by saying that on no account could the liberty of Carine be granted.

'If thou wouldst marry her,' said he, looking, as Matthias thought, more wicked than a demon, 'thou must give up all thy wealth to us, and become our bondman.'

With this the lover went sadly away, and returned to Tarsus, saying to himself:

'It is impossible for me to give up, not only the gains of my life, but even my liberty, for the sake of this cow-girl. I must try to forget her.'

So he went back among his friends, and began to walk in the bazaars. When the Jew saw him, he cried out:

'Hail, oh wise man, that will not burthen himself with the society of a woman!'

But the merchant frowned black upon him, and turned away; and to, the surprise of all the neighbors, went and sat down by the side of the Christian tailor, and taking his hand, whispered to him:

'Close thy shop, my friend, and lead, that I may see, as thou didst promise, thy wife, and thy child.'

'Which child?' said said the tailor. 'I have now three, Gorges, Lisbet, Hanna.'

'All of them,' said Matthias; 'and also the ebony black girl, Zarifetta.'

'Oh!' said the tailor, 'I have set her free and she is married to the pudding seller, round the corner.'

'It seems,' said Matthias to himself, 'that it is the law of Heaven that every one shall marry.'

The tailor shut up his shop and took the merchant home and showed him his domestic wealth; that is to say, his pretty wife, his three stout children, a coal black girl called Zara, who was kneading dough in the court yard.

'My friend,' said Matthias, 'what wouldst thou do if the powerful were to say to thee, thou must be deprived of all this, or else lose thy liberty and become a slave.'

'Liberty is sweet,' replied the tailor, shrugging his shoulders; 'yet some live without it, but none can live without love.'

Upon this the merchant went back to his palace, and mounted his mule and rode to the monastery, where he found the court-yard full of people.

'I am come,' said he to one of the fathers whom he met at the gateway, 'to give up my liberty and my wealth for the sake of Carine.'

'It is too late,' was the reply; 'Skander, the porker, has driven in all his pigs, and they are putting the chain upon his neck in the chapel, and all these people that thou seest collected are to be witnesses of his marriage with Carine.'

Matthias smote his breast with his hands, and the sides of his mule with his heels, and galloped through the crowd shouting out that nobody should be made a slave that day but he. The chief of the Monastery, on hearing what was the matter, smiled and said, 'that the porker had a previous claim;' but the monks, who, perhaps, looked forward to the enjoyments which the merchant's wealth would afford them, ingeniously suggested that he had the best claim who had hesitated least. Carine's opinion was asked; and she, seeing both of her suitors resolved, heartlessly condemned the porker to liberty, and said,

'Let the chain be put upon the neck of the merchant.'

The ceremony was immediately performed; and, while the head of the convent was preparing to begin the more interesting rite of the marriage, brother Bong, the treasurer of the monastery, set off to take an inventory of the wealth which had thus fallen under his jurisdiction.

It is said that Matthias never gave a single thought to his lost property, being too much absorbed in contemplating the charms of the beautiful Carine. The only stipulation he made was, that he should be allowed to go out to the pasturage with her; and, the next morning, he found himself, in sober seriousness helping to drive Nahara and its companions down to the water's side.

Meanwhile the Governor of Tarsus heard what had happened to Matthias, and was stricken with rage, and caused his mule to be saddled and his guards to mounted, and set forth to the monastery, and summoned the chief, saying: "Know, O Monk, that Matthias is my friend, and it cannot be that he shall be thy slave, and that all his wealth shall be transferred from my city to thy monastery. He is a liberal citizen, and I may not lose him from amongst us." The Governor spoke thus by reason of certain loans without interest, and presents, (over and above the purse and the string of pearls which the merchant had presented at his first seeing,) with which Matthias had freely obliged the Governor, who also hoped a continuance of the same. Whereupon the chief of the monastery bid his hands and was humbled; and the Governor and he parted with a good understanding and agreement.

It fell out, therefore, that after a month of servitude Matthias and his bride were called before an assembly of the whole monastery, and informed that the conditions imposed were simply for the sake of trial. Nearly all the wealth of the merchant was restored to him, and he was liberated and led back amidst applauding crowds to his palace at Tarsus. Of course he made a liberal donation to the monastery, over and above a round sum which Bong, the treasurer, had not found it in his heart to return with the rest. Being a just and generous man, he not only relieved the Jew from the consequences of his wager, but made such presents to the Christian tailor, that he had no longer any need to ply the needle for his livelihood. Tradition dilates with delight on the happiness which Carine bestowed on her husband who used always to say, 'that with wealth or without wealth, with liberty or without liberty, she was sufficient to bring content into any house, and to make the sternest heart happy.'—[Illustrated News.

REVISED AND NEWLY ILLUSTRATED EDITION of Smith's Geography and Atlas, To which has been added ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY.

THIS work has been very much enlarged, embellished with new illustrations throughout, designed expressly for it, critically corrected and thoroughly revised, so as to conform to the census of the United States for 1850—to that of Great Britain and Ireland, March, 1851, and to the latest that could be obtained of other countries.

The acquisition of territory to the United States, the discovery of the mineral wealth of California and Australia, and the establishment of steam communication between remote parts of the earth, has greatly increased geographical knowledge.

The information thus obtained has been carefully collected and inserted in this edition. It has been not only necessary to correct the maps of former editions, but to add new maps of the States of California and Texas, of the Territories of Oregon, Washington, Utah, New Mexico, Nebraska, and the countries of Mexico and Central America, which has been done from the latest and best authorities.

A large map of the Roman Empire is also added, to aid in the study of Ancient Geography.

By a system of Emblems and Abbreviations, consisting of stars, crosses, books, steamboats, &c., conspicuously arranged on all the maps, representing the Grand Divisions of the Globe—the Government, Religion, State of Society, Population, Navigation, &c., of the more important countries, become apparent at the first glance, and by thus calling into simultaneous exercise the powers of the mind and eye, impressions are made more abiding than by any other means whatever.

Besides all this, the work is rendered still more valuable and complete by the addition of a complete compendium of ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY, which will be found as interesting and instructive as the more extended treatises on this subject.

The Atlas has been not only thoroughly revised, corrected and enlarged, as stated above, but also contains a large number of new and interesting statistical tables, from the census of the United States and other sources. It will be found in all cover only.

A sett of questions, for general revision, is appended to the work, which will be found of great convenience to the Teacher and aid to the Scholar, in bringing definitely and distinctly to his mind, in a condensed form, the main features of the subject he has gone over.

These improvements and additions will greatly enhance the value of the work, and if the views and method of the author are fully carried out, much valuable time of the pupil will be saved, and great labor on the part of the teacher avoided.

Smith's Series of Geography consists of Smith's Primary Geography for Beginners..........
Smith's Quarto Geography..........
And the Geography and Atlas mentioned above..........

For sale by Booksellers generally throughout the United States.

Committees, Teachers and others engaged in the cause of Education, will be supplied with copies for examination. Published by DANIEL BURGESS & CO., No. 60 John st., N. Y.

The Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Routes.

EDITOR OF THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE:

SIR:—Being desirous to illustrate the practicability of the four or five different proposed routes, extending from the Mississippi river westward to the Pacific Ocean, allow me to present to your readers and the public at large the following carefully prepared statements:

THE SOUTHERN, OR TEXAN ROUTE.

This proposed route commences at San Diego on the Pacific ocean, situated near the 32d deg. of north latitude. The first natural obstacle to be encountered is a desert waste, of about one hundred miles; then the Colorado of the West is crossed, and the route ascends up the Gila river, on the south or Mexican side of the stream; the said privilege being granted by Treaty Stipulation, as follows: "If by examinations which may be made, it should be ascertained to be practicable and advantageous to construct a road, canal, or railway, which should in whole or in part run upon the river Gila, or upon its right or its left bank, within the space of one marine league from either margin of the river, the governments of both republics will form an agreement regarding its construction, in order that it may serve equally for the use and advantage of both countries."

From the nature of the topography of the country along the banks of the Gila river, it will be necessary to run along the entire route, from its mouth to its source, through Sonora and a portion of Chihuahua, in order to strike the western confines of New Mexico or Texas, on about the 32d degree of north latitude, near where the boundary line between the two republics intersects the Rio Grande, the precise point being 32° 22 min. north latitude.

From the Rio Grande eastward it is proposed to follow along nearly parallel with the 32d deg. to the Colorado of Texas,—then to follow the above stream down to Austin by one branch, while the main route extends nearly east toward Fulton on the Red river, where the line diverges toward New Orleans, situated near the 30th degree of north latitude, and to Little Rock, running eastward to Helena and Memphis, on the Mississippi river,—making a total distance of about 2,000 miles from San Diego to New Orleans or Memphis.

THE MIDDLE, OR GWIN'S PROPOSED ROUTE.

Extends from San Francisco, situated near the 38th degree of N. Latitude in a southeast direction towards Walker's Pass, near the 35th degree of north latitude,—thence runs eastward over an unexplored region of country, partly inhabited by the most warlike portion of the Apache Indians. It strikes the Rio Grande at Albuquerque, and runs to San Miguel, about 100 miles farther, where the proposed route diverges,—the South Branch striking the head waters of Red river, and running eastward to New Orleans, being in part through an unexplored section of country. The North Branch extends from San Miguel along the common travelled route to the Arkansas river, and thence to Independence and St. Louis. The following are the distances given on this route, in a Report presented to the Senate of the United States:

From San Francisco to points on the Mississippi River, &c.:

To Memphis, Tenn.	2,000 miles.
St. Louis, Mo.	1,960 "
Dubuque, Iowa,	2,010 "
New Orleans, La.	2,150 "
Matagorda, Texas,	1,800 "
Puget's Sound, Wash. Ter.	770 "
To points on the Atlantic coast:
To Savannah, Geo.	2,717 miles.
Charleston, S. C.	2,733 "
Norfolk, Va.	2,861 "
Baltimore, Md.	[illegible] "
Philadelphia, Pa.	2,910 "
New York,	3,000 "

THE MIDDLE, OR BENTON'S ROUTE.

This imaginary line extends from St. Louis westward to the confines of Missouri, along the line of the Pacific Railroad, now being under construction. From Kansas, it proceeds up one of the forks of the Kansas river, towards Bent's Fort, striking the head waters of the Arkansas river on the 38th degree of north latitude. The route from thence across the Rocky Mountains, the Wahsatch Mountains, and the Sierra Nevada Mountains, is as yet alone known to the distinguished projector and his immediate associates, who are at the present moment engaged in exploring it, through an almost unknown section of country, thinly inhabited by roving, warlike Indians.

THE CENTRAL NORTHERN ROUTE.

This route extends from the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific, on a line running nearly parallel to the 42d degree of north latitude. It may be said to commence at the city of New York, and run nearly due west to the south end of Lake Michigan, by sundry lines of railroads, now already constructed to Chicago. From Chicago westward the proposed line will cross the Mississippi river at several points, and unite in the valley of the Platte or Nebraska river, west of the Missouri river, running direct to Fort Laramie, and thence through the South Pass of the Rocky Mountains to the head waters of the Columbia river in the Territory of Oregon, terminating at the head of ship navigation.

From the Columbia river it is proposed to extend the railroad route north to Olympia, situated on Puget's Sound, in the new Territory of Washington, and south along the fertile valley of the Willamette river to the valley of the Sacramento river, thence down the latter stream to Sacramento city, situated at the head of steamboat navigation.

As to the practicability of this route there cannot be the least doubt, while the other routes are yet to be fully explored, and almost insurmountable difficulties in regard to climate and topography have to be overcome, to say nothing of the greater want of wood and water on the more southern route.

THE NORTHERN ROUTE.

This proposed route, now being explored by Gov. Stevens, of the new Territory of Washington, extends from St. Paul's, situated a few miles below the Falls of St. Anthony, on the Mississippi river, up the valley of St. Peter's river, in a northwest direction toward the head waters of the Missouri river, to the 48th degree of north latitude, where is situated Fort Union. From thence the route extends westward along the main branch of the Missouri river to the Grand Gate or Defile of the mountains, near the 47th degree of north latitude, where it is proposed to cross the Rocky Mountains, and strike the head waters of Clarke's Fork of the Columbia river, terminating on Puget's Sound, on about the 48th degree of north latitude.

In regard to this route, but little is as yet known of the most difficult portion, extending from Fort Union to the Pacific ocean. It is, however, expected that within a few months reports will be made by the different parties now exploring, in order to ascertain the most practicable routes from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean.

Yours respectfully,

J. DISTURNELL.

Chicago, Nov. 5th, 1853.

TALK AT WASHINGTON.

As the season for the convening of Congress draws nigh, the intrigues and plots which have been concocting during the vacation begin to show themselves, and the different cliques and factions prepare for their winter's campaign.—Our latest intelligence from the seat of Government is quite interesting and somewhat important. If the curtain were only entirely raised, as it will be ere many weeks, we should see some very rare and peculiar political machinery in and about the White House. It appears that the complete letter Writer, CALEB CUSHING, has set his heart upon the Premiership, and his restless ambition will not be quiet until he has "crushed out" Messrs. Marcy, Guthrie, and one or two other members of the Cabinet, and seated himself and his friends in their places.—Certain foreign appointments, also, do not meet the views of Caleb, and his first move on assuming the chair of state will probably be to reconstruct the whole list of our representatives abroad. The plot of this new national drama is not more intricate than the secret springs, mysterious claptraps, and wonderful changes necessary to its complete success.

Mr. Crampton is said to have had a long interview with President Pierce, in the course of which the former gentleman positively denied that there was any truth in the ridiculous rumors that the British government was engaged in any scheme to substitute the apprenticeship system for slavery in Cuba.

It is confidently asserted, in well informed circles in Washington, that Russia is intensely desirous of securing the neutrality of the United States in the expected struggle, in which case the Czar, backed by Austria and Prussia, would feel authorized to bid defiance to all the other powers of Europe combined. It is broadly intimated that it was the purpose of gaining this very object of neutrality, that produced the quiet and speedy arrangement of the Koszta affair.

Governor Foote, it is confidently believed, will be returned to the United States Senate, despite the fact that all the influence of Secretary Davis has been brought to bear against him.

It is asserted that the friendly reception given to Com. Perry's squadron by the citizens of Jeddo, was in consequence of instructions sent by the British government to its Consul at Shanghae, to communicate with the authorities of Japan, and apprise them of the coming and object of the Americans. It is understood that the contents of the despatches from Com. Perry will not be divulged for some time, unless through the direction of Congress.

MR. HENRY SEDLEY.—HIS MERITS AS AN ACTOR.

Those of our readers who were fortunate enough to be present at the Theatre on the early part of Saturday evening last, had an excellent opportunity of judging of the histrionic talent of the young gentleman, whose name heads this article. The play, "TIME TRIES ALL," was one in which no aid could be derived from any extraordinary interest of plot, 'scapes, the deadly breach, or any other extraneous attraction, by the glitter of which actors frequently blind an audience to their own imperfections. The story was one of simple, every day life; the dramatis personæ appeared in modern costume; the plot was simple; the incidents common place. The play is beautifully written, it is true, and contains truths which must come home to the breast of every man who has lived and loved, but it stops here and leaves every thing else to depend upon the intrinsic merit of the performer, without the aid of Stage effect, or any of the "pride pomp, and circumstance" usually attendant upon scenic representations. Neither was the cast of the play as strong as it might have been. Although Mr. MILLER played Leeson very well, much better indeed than we have generally seen him play, yet every one must have felt that Mr. RICE should have taken that part. Mr. ALLEN is wholly incapable of sustaining the character of Mr. Tact, which is a first low comedy part and should have been cast to McVICKER. No fault could be found with Miss WYETTE, as Laura, nor with Mrs. RICE, as FANNY FACT. They both won entire admiration. But taking into consideration the character of the piece, the unfavorable circumstances which we have mentioned, and which threw almost the entire burden of sustaining the interest of the piece upon his shoulders, we are confident that every discriminating judge of the Drama must agree with us in the opinion that Mr. Sedley achieved a decided triumph. His impersonation of the boyish lover, with his entire heart wrapped up in his cousin; the timidity and constraint of a first love; the impetuous, and for the moment the overwhelming, grief of a rejection from his adored one; the struggle between his love and pride; the triumph of the latter, and his departure from the scene of his love and of his misery; his return, after three years absence, to his former home, transformed into a man of the world, his timidity all gone, his bashfulness converted into irresistible and winning grace, and his love still unabated, but so skillfully hidden by the mask of self command as to deceive even Laura; the simple but admirable plan by which he brought her to see her own love, and then the eager, passionate burst of eloquence with which he [illegible] to his heart; all were executed in a manner which exhibited not only close and patient study of his author, and a very correct appreciation of his part, but a degree of genuine talent which we have rarely seen equalled upon our stage.

We record this opinion with the more pleasure because we know it is shared by many others and because it is a confirmation of the high expectations we had entertained of Mr. Sedley and which we are confident will soon be fully realized. We do not hesitate to confess that we have taken a very deep interest in this actor. We know him to be possessed of an excellent classical education; to come of a family whose names are interwoven with the history and renown of our national Drama; to have inherited from his parents, qualities, which when fully matured will lead to renown in the arduous profession he has adopted, not from necessity, but con amore; and withal to be endowed with an unflinching and unwearying determination to excel therein. We are conscious that he made his appearance on the Chicago Stage this winter, under circumstances highly unfavorable to himself, and under which he has labored to a certain extent until now, but to which it is now unnecessary to more fully refer. But let it not be said of us that we have permitted any prejudice, or regret at any unavoidable change, to so sway our judgement, as to render us insensible and ungrateful for true histrionic talent, when its possessor exerts it for our delight and benefit.

To show, though it may hardly be necessary to do so, that our estimation of Mr. SEDLEY is fully sustained by the opinion of other Journals and Theatrical critics, we close these remarks with the following extracts from various Eastern and Southern exchanges:

MICHIGAN NORTHERN RAILROAD.

Messrs. Gzowski & Co. have taken the contract for building the Michigan Northern Railroad, which will unite Port Huron (opposite Sarnia) and Grand Haven (opposite Milwaukie, on Lake Michigan), a distance of 200 miles. The road is to be constructed on the same scale as the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada.

THE RAILROAD CROSSING.

We present, this morning, the Minority Report of JOHN VAN NORTWICK, Esq., one of the Commissioners in adjusting the Railroad Crossing difficulty between the Michigan Southern and Illinois Central Railroad Companies. The disagreement of the Commissioners leaves the question precisely where it was before Mr. Guthrie's appointment,—the Statute requiring that the award shall be the unanimous expression of the three Commissioners.

We trust now that no judicial act will be had to prevent the case going to the Supreme Court, in order that all the questions involved may be finally adjudicated. These railroad disputes are delicate questions for Courts to handle, and the true course to pursue is to let them go to the highest tribunals for settlement, when either of the parties desire it. A court that takes a position contrary to this, will justly render itself obnoxious to suspicion. For the railroad companies themselves we have no particular sympathies. They act for their pecuniary interests, and will sometimes do things, in their corporate capacity, that in individuals would be deemed disreputable. With this view of the matter, we have never complained at the almost incessant warfare of the Michigan Southern Railroad Company upon the Michigan Central and Illinois Central Companies, though it has paid enough money to carry on that war to build a better bridge than the two commissioners required. It is much better, too, that it should pay lawyers to worry other Corporations than to worry the people; for so long as it is occupied with the former, it will from necessity be very complaisant to the latter.

CROSSING CASE—MINORITY REPORT.

To the Hon. E. S. Morris, Judge of the Circuit Court for the county of Cook:

The undersigned, one of the commissioners selected to ascertain and determine, in pursuance of Section eleven of the Charter of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, the point and manner in which the railroad of said Company should be allowed to cross the track of the Northern Indiana and Chicago Railroad Company, and the compensation to be made to the last named Company, respectfully reports—that having in conjunction with his associates in this commission, (Joseph Gillespie and Edward H. Grandhead) examined the point of crossing in question, heard the testimony and arguments of Attorneys and Counsel of the parties in interest, and having maturely considered the matters submitted, he has been unable to agree with his associates in their report. He further respectfully states that by the charter of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, the said Company have the right to cross the track of any other railroad, and by Section eleven of said Charter, it is provided that when the route of the said road or either of its branches, shall intersect, cross or connect with, or run along or upon the line of any other railroad now constructed or now in process of construction, by any other Company, it shall join with such other company in making all necessary turnouts, sidelongs, and switches, and other conveniences necessary to further the objects of such connection, and that all railroads so constructed or in process of construction interested, as aforesaid, and connections made with the roads authorized to be built by this Act shall be made, and facilities in the transhipment of freight and passengers, and interchange of cars effected by such over the respective roads upon fair and equitable terms, and if the companies cannot agree upon the points and manner of such crossings and connections, the transhipment of freight and passengers, and interchange of cars, the same shall be ascertained and determined by three commissioners. It was also provided by an Amendment of the Charter of the Illinois Central Railroad company, that the roads of other companies might cross their road, and that when so crossed, the two companies should join in making and affording business connections on the same terms and conditions as is provided by Section Eleven above referred to.

These acts in my opinion were intended to secure to the Illinois Central Railroad company the right to connect its road with any other roads upon its route, constructed or constructing, at the time its charter passed, the right to have an interchange of business, both freight and passengers, as well as cars from one road to the other, and to secure to all roads which cross its track the same rights, and to the public the benefits that would be derived from such business connections.

These are important and valuable rights to the public, and generally to the companies, and in my opinion, being secured by legislative enactments, render it imperative on the companies to join in making such connections, and affording these business facilities to the public.

An intersection of one road with another can only be made at grade, or where the tracks are upon the same level. The rights and privileges above mentioned would be practically cut off and destroyed at the point in question, unless the crossing be at grade or upon the same level. To require the track of either of the roads to cross otherwise than at grade or upon a level would, in my opinion, be a violation of the rights of these companies and the public, and would defeat the whole object of the legislature and would be contrary to the policy of the State as evinced by their enactments, which policy is in accordance with the general practice and usage in constructing railroads as well in this country as in Europe, and with legislative enactments and requirements in reference to railroads.

In my opinion, therefore, the track of the Illinois Central Railroad should cross that of the Northern Indiana and Chicago road at the point where they now cross and upon the same level, and the manner of such crossing should be by crossing frogs, substantially as now constructed, and that the compensation to be paid by the Illinois Central Railroad company to the Northern Indiana and Chicago company should be one thousand dollars.

All which is respectfully submitted.

TEXAS NEWS.

We have dates from Galveston to the 21st ult., and also late papers from the interior of the State.

The yellow fever is still lingering in some of the principal towns. In Galveston during the four days previous to the 17th ult., 16 deaths occurred.

In Houston the sickness appeared to be getting worse. The number of deaths on the 13th, 14th, and 15th, were from seven to nine per day.

The Lavaca Commercial on the 4th ult., says: Since last week our city has presented a lamentable spectacle. Death and desolation seem to have reigned supreme. Already seventeen of our most useful and worthy citizens have fallen victims to the terrible destroyer, the yellow fever, among whom we are grieved to state is Dr. Moses Johnson. There seems to be no abatement to the disease as yet, and we say to our friends in the country, keep away for the present. Our streets are almost deserted, and our hotels are filled with the sick and suffering.

The Indianola Bulletin of the 12th ult., says the epidemic still continues there.

The Austin American says:—Since the late depredations upon Noland's Creek, the citizens of the vicinage have been endeavoring to organize a company of minutemen. At the time Col. Robertson left, it was not known with what success. The formation of such corps, we think, is called for by the present condition of affairs upon the frontier.

The fifteen men who left in pursuit of the Wacos from Bell county, had not come in at last account. Col. Robertson learned that two of the party had returned, after having been out ten or twelve days. The party were still on the trail—out of provisions, but not out of hopes of overtaking the Indians.

Lieut. McNutt, in charge of the Ordnance Depot in this city, has received an order from Colonel Craig, Chief of the Ordnance Department, to get ready three six pounder bronze guns, and one twelve pound bronze howitzer, fully equipped, to await the order of General Smith.—Western Texan.

Death of Prof. Butler—Arrest of his Antagonist—Lectures of Lucy Stone.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 2.

Prof. Butler, who was shot yesterday by Matthew Ward, died last night. Judge Jones refused to accept bail for Ward's appearance, and remanded him to jail. The younger brother of Ward has been arrested, charged with being an accomplice.

Lucy Stone lectured last night to a crowded house, and lectures again to-night.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

The case of WM. S. JOHNSTON vs. WM. JONES, which has been on trial before the United States Court, in this city, for some time, was brought to a close yesterday, so far as the testimony and the arguments of counsel were concerned, and submitted to the jury. As the case has excited considerable interest owing to the several trials that have previously been had on it, as also the amount of property involved, we have thought the charge of Judge DRUMMOND, which covers all the law involved in the case, would be read with interest, and we accordingly give it as follows:

In February, 1833, Robert A. Kinzie was owner of, and caused to be surveyed, a portion of the town of Chicago, called Kinzie's Addition. This being completed, it was in the same month filed for record, and duly recorded in January, 1834. The Surveyor, George W. Snow, who made the survey, also placed the map for the Recorder on the book of Records in his office. According to this survey the lots in question were sixty feet wide on North Water st., and run South. The line of Water st. was, as appears by the maps, N. 78° 11' East. The lines dividing the lots were ascertained by running at right angles with the line of Water st. leaving an interval between each lot of sixty ft. The lines of these lots were not measured, nor is there anything to show on the plats the length. The recorded plat shows the lines longer than on the original map.

The North line of the lots run to the Lake, as all maps show, and the lines running to the river and to the Lake, were of different lengths, as all agree, owing to their relative direction. This appears from both maps. When the survey was made, it was the general impression that a Harbor might be constructed on line of the present pier. Indeed on 2nd of March, 1833, an appropriation was made by Congress for that purpose. In 1833–'4, the piers were thrown out into the Lake. As soon as they were extended land began to be formed by accretion, and some acres have thus been made upon the North Side of the North pier.

The plaintiff in this case is the owner of Lot No. 24, and defendant of Lot No. 25, in Kinzie's addition. The controversy turns upon the length of the east line of 24; that is, whether that line at the time of survey in 1833, struck the Lake before it reached the line of pier. The plaintiff contends, it struck the Lake 124 feet north of the line of pier as afterwards built,—defendants contend the reverse. By the original map, as made by Surveyor Snow, it struck the Lake as plaintiff contends,—by the recorded map, it does not; that is, provided you can apply scale and measure to the map. There is nothing else on maps by which the measurements can be determined. The lake shore was not meandered. The surveyor in his survey set up his Jacob-staff in the edge of the Lake, and took an observation. This evidence is undisputed. If this is so, and lots on North Water street were extended to Lake, and no measures were taken or laid down with courses, the Court is of opinion that neither the recorded nor original map binds the parties, but that either party may resort to other evidence, or may run the line south to find where it strikes the Lake. Under such a state of facts, this kind of plat does not meet the requirements of the law. At the time of making the map, the law required that plats should be recorded, when made, with proper lines, distances, and courses, and when so made and recorded, should bind the parties. If the jury believe this map was so made and recorded, then the recorded map governs.

If the jury should find that the line of lots 24 and 5 did touch the water before reaching the line of the pier, they will further find the length of water line North of North pier on the old shore, then the length of the line of 24 and 5 from N. Water st. to point where it struck the lake in W. 33°, next they are to find length of new made lake shore, then divide the new made shore length into as many parts, as there are feet on old lake shore, and give to each party as many of those parts as his number of feet on old lake shore proportionally requires. Then, if they draw a line from the point of division on old lake shore to the point on new line of shore as the proper proportions above given, this will indicate the division line between the parties. Such is the principle of division.

If, however, the jury believe that line dividing lots 24 and 25, did not strike the water of the lake, before reaching line of pier, in W. 33°, the plaintiff cannot recover. The whole controversy under the ruling of the Court on the law turns on the length of this line in W. 33°.

His Honor having given this general view of the case, proceeded to charge as to the specific instructions asked for by the respective Counsel.

The charge having been delivered, the case was given to the jury, who retired, and having been out about three hours, brought in a verdict for plaintiff.

OUR WOODEN WALLS.

It has been stated by those whose means of information are undoubted, that the total tonnage of the continent of Europe, for all kinds of vessels, is a little over two hundred millions. The tonnage of England rather doubles that amount, and our own tonnage is four hundred thousand less than that of England. This of course includes shipping of every kind. The number of guns which the European continent has in commission is stated to be 22,000, while England alone, apart from her merchant and steam marine, has 18,000 guns. Our own navy, of whose achievements in former days every American is justly proud, consists of eleven ships of the line, one razee, twelve first class frigates, two second class, twenty-two sloops of war, four brigs, three schooners, nine steamers, and some storeships. Of this formidable array, the Mississippi is so badly armed, and her guns so light, that an English war steamer with only one large gun, could destroy her before her fire could take the slightest effect.

It is certainly a fact deeply to be regretted that while private enterprise is striding forward in the improvement of marine architecture with unwonted speed, while that branch of the useful arts is keeping pace with the spirit of the age and the energies of the country in every department, and while other civilized governments are exerting all their energies in building up and perfecting their naval defences, and particularly increasing their steam marine, our wonderful administration at Washington is actually about to take a retrograde step in this matter, and not content with being merely stationary has resolved, by a stroke of Old Fogyism unequalled by any precedent, to put us as a nation, some forty years behind the age. A recent article in an Eastern exchange holds the following language.

By recent intelligence from the capital, we learn that instead of encouraging those enterprises of the people which reflect honor upon the country and contribute to its power, the chief magistrate intends in his first message to Congress to propose to cut off the patronage afforded by the government to those lines of steamships which carry the mails, and whose fast-sailing qualities ought to teach the administration their duty to the nation in reference to the neglected and disgraceful state of the navy. The only palliation that could be afforded, under recent administrations, for that disgrace and that neglect, was the encouragement given by Congress to the erection of steamships by private citizens, which in case of emergency could be converted immediately into vessels of war, and placed at the disposal of the government.—Even that excuse is now about to be taken away; and before any provision is made to cope with the very feeblest of maritime powers on that great element of which this nation might and ought to be the sovereign, a heavy blow is to be struck at the only substitute we have for that great arm of the public service whose strength cannot be reduced with impunity.

Our power ought, therefore, to be felt in our navy, not so much in the number of its ships as in their superiority, and the consciousness of the strength that is at its back. But the spoils Cabinet, entertaining a horror of the locomotive, the type of the age, prefer the old stage, and even that they are disposed to back into the ditch, rather than be accused of making progress. By a suicidal course of policy they are preparing to destroy the means of meeting any sudden outslaught that might be made upon that flag which for threescore years and ten has braved the battle and the breeze. Is the spirit of George Washington, Patrick Henry, and Andrew Jackson extinct? And is the only patriotism now to be found in our public men, a rage for public plunder and a desire to aggrandize themselves at the expense of the honor, the welfare, and the safety of the glorious land that gave them birth?

BISHOP WHITEHOUSE'S ADDRESS—THE POSSIBILITY OF HIS RESIGNATION—BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE TO BISHOP CHASE—SUMMARY OF STATISTICS.

The annual address of the Bishop of the Episcopal Church in this State to his Clergy has just appeared from the office of Pudney & Russell, New York. It is an able and interesting document. We subjoin several extracts that will be of great interest to many of our readers. In the opening of his address he thus alludes to the probability of his resignation:

"I regret, and may have cause to do so more and more, that with a training which may, by God's goodness, not be without its adaptive use, there is the deficiency of the peculiar hardihood of temperament and habit, perhaps essential for a Western Diocese. The responsibility of my being here is hardly my own; and except the calm sense of needful, active, sacrificing duty, I know of no impulse to hold me. The high office with which it invested me, I magnify—there is none higher in its awful lineage and charge. But should the time come, when, through misfortune or fault, from strength permanently inadequate, or failure in executive ability, from the perverseness of others, or the sin of my own life, my power is manifestly unequal to your exigency—then shall I at once give back the jurisdiction, and seek in humbler and less responsible form the work of the ministry, which should end only with life. Duty to the Church, vouched by others, sadly repudiated by my own conviction, wrung my consent. The same motive, even with the deepest sadness of shame and failure, shall be as potent for withdrawal. The Church has men fitted for her exigent need; and, with my present convictions, it would be sin for me to cumber the office which can call and employ them. The individual is nothing—the Church is all."

He then pays an eloquent tribute to the character and worth of the late lamented Bishop Chase, whose death was so severe a blow to the prosperity of the Church, that he founded in toil and self-sacrifice:

"The stage heart, the energetic hand, pastoral affection, cheerful self-denial, patient industry, blameless uprightness, readiness to speak always for Christ, and his truth and love, and down to the very entrance into the shadow of death, unhesitating trust in God; these are the elements of a character, which, whether its path be through a land of ancient cities or churches, or on the utmost verge of migration, the minister of Christ, in whatever degree or station, may ever be exhorted to make, by faith and prayer, his own.

"But this age is not the one in which Bishop Chase's Christian fame will be the highest. It will be found eminently realized in the history of the Church, that "his works do follow him;" and the wise foresight and broad plans of Christian Education, to which he was so devoted, will expand in clearer, truer form, for each succeeding generation."

After giving an account of his various duties and travels in the Diocese, he sums them up as follows:

Visited 122 churches and chapels.
Preached, ...165
Missionary & Confirmation addresses, 66—231
Baptised 6 adults & 33 infants—whole number, ...39
Holy Communion, 48 times.
Confirmed 70 times—332.
Ordained 3 Deacons and 1 Priest.
Consecrated 10 Churches.
Laid corner stones of 4 Churches.
Instituted 3 Rectors.
Funerals, 5. Marriages, 2.
Distance traveled, 12,683 miles.*

We copy, also, that which he says about moving into the Diocese to reside, as on this point, deep interest is felt by the people of his charge. There can be no doubt that his removal here, should he abandon his idea of resigning (which we hope he will do) will not only be more satisfactory to his clergy and his congregations, but will also tend to advance measurably the prosperity of his Diocese. We give what he says on this subject:

"I have suspended my own domestic plans, until I could fairly understand what the prospects was of combining them with the usefulness, comfort and dignity of my successors. For myself, the undertaking must bring labor, responsibility, and expense. It gives a wide expanse to the anxieties of the remainder of my life, but it has appeared to me to be one of the forms in which I could most effectually serve the permanent interest of the Diocese and Church at large. I am willing to make some effort to attain it, to do what can be done for it in this form, or modify it if necessity require—provided the hearty and patient confidence of the Diocese is with the work, and the Convention will sanction the longer delay which may occur in providing for myself a suitable home within the bounds of my jurisdiction. And though my own convictions on the subject of the application of the primitive Cathedral System will probably remain unchanged, I shall prefer to guide myself in harmony even with the adverse silence of the clergy and laity, rather than persevere in an enterprise uncheered by their judgment and sympathy."

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

THE NEWS BY THE AFRICA'S MAILS

Extensive Preparations for War.

Movements of the Fleets.

Enthusiasm of the People and Clergy.

We received on last evening the details of the news brought by the British mail steamship Africa, whose arrival at New York on Friday morning we have already announced with a summary of her news.

We give below the full details of the interesting intelligence brought by her.

We have dates from London and Liverpool by her, up to the 22d ult.

Among her passengers was Mr. W. Moore, British Consul to New Orleans.

TURKEY AND RUSSIA.

A despatch has been received in Paris from Vienna, giving the following as a report of Prince Gortchakoff to the summons of Omer Pacha to evacuate the Danubian principalities:

"My master is not at war with Turkey, but I have orders not to leave the principalities until the Porte shall have given to the Emperor the moral satisfaction he demands. When this point has been obtained, I will evacuate the principalities immediately, whatever the time or the season. If I am attacked by the Turkish army I will confine myself to the defensive."

A letter in the Debats, from Constantinople, dated October 5th, gives this account of the forces of Turkey and Russia:

"There is reason for believing that the Turks have more than 200,000 men under arms, of whom 140,000 are in Europe, and the rest on the Asiatic frontier. As to the Russian force, it is impossible to ascertain the fact amidst so many contradictory reports. An estimate, drawn up at the headquarters of Omer Pacha, who has good sources of intelligence in the principalities, gives the Russian army of Moldo-Wallachia and Bessarabia a nominal strength of 124,000 men; but it must not be forgotten that, of all European armies, that of Russia constantly presents the greatest difference between the nominal and the effective strength.

"According to the estimate just mentioned, the Russian corps d'armee would have 95,000 infantry, 17,000 cavalry, and 12,000 artillery; but looking at the administrative habits of the Russians, and according to the experience of the campaigns of 1828–9, it is difficult to believe that from these 124,000 men on paper could be produced more than 80,000 effective soldiers and perhaps even this figure is too high. I am told by persons worthy of credit, that at this moment the Russian army has more than 14,000 sick. Of course, it is impossible for me personally to authenticate this statement.

A writer in one of the London papers is taking some pains to show that Russia has been much weakened lately by her wars with the Caucasians. He quotes from Hommaire de Hell, a late traveller, statements, showing that the Russian soldiery are fed on unwholesome provisions or starved, through the knavery of the commissaries and other officers; that entire divisions disappear, by famine or disease, in the course of two or three months, and at the end of three or four years the army has to be entirely renewed. The late Russian dispatches, giving an account of victories obtained in the Caucasus, are declared by the Paris journal Patrie to be utterly unfounded.

It is stated that the Turkish government has asked the French Emperor to allow two general officers and about a dozen staff officers to attach themselves to his army.

The Trieste Gazette notices a difference which distinguishes the present Turkish declaration of war from those which have preceded it. Formerly every act of this kind was preceded by a fetvah by the Sheik ul Islam, as chief of the Mahommedan religion, and which declared the war to be commanded by the Church. This time, out of regard for the Christians, the custom has been broken; and the declaration of war is exclusively a political act. The fetvah given merely states that the projected war was not contrary to religion.

The assertion that the Greek Christians of the empire are likely to give a cordial support to the Porte, is strongly confirmed by the following account of the proceedings of the Solemn Councils, composed of 180 persons of the first rank in the empire, which declared war.

Mehemet-Ali-Pacha, the Minister of War, stated that the regular troops on the Danube and on the frontier of Anatolia, amounted to 217,000 men, without reckoning the irregular troops and the numerous bodies of volunteers. The minister added, that various contingents of regular troops gave, in addition, a reserve of 180,000 men, ready to march at any moment. It was decided that this imposing force should be directed partly to the Russian confines of Asia and partly to the frontier of Roumelia.

"The Minister of Marine, Mahmoud Pacha, informed the meeting of the desire expressed by the fleet to go and watch the coasts of the Black Sea. Mouktar-Bey Effendi, official agent of the viceroy of Egypt and counsellor of state, declared, in the name of the Abbas Pacha, that his Highness was disposed to manifest his devotedness to the Sultan by unlimited sacrifices. A member of the council, in congratulating the meeting on the friendly demonstrations of the Shah of Persia, expressed a desire to learn if that prince was in reality resolved to make common cause with the Porte. One of the ministers was about to reply, when the Cheriff Mohamed-Ibn-Haum rose all of a sudden and cried out: 'May God render the sword of the Sultan victorious.'

"This Cheriff, who for upwards of fifteen years has occupied the post of Grand Cheriff of Mecca, exercises an extraordinary influence, as descendant of the Prophet, over the tribes of Arabia, Syria, and Kurdistan. He declared that the Turkish clergy had placed at the disposal of the government considerable sums for the expenses of the war. Reschid Pacha then again addressed the meeting, expressed his satisfaction at the peaceful conduct of the Christian population, notwithstanding the efforts which had been made to excite them. He declared that, in consequence, the government protected with a most particular care that class of its subjects.

"The heads of the clergy declared, that they could confirm with great pleasure what the minister had said relative to the disposition of the Christian populations, adding that they had only to combat their enemies, the Russians, and that the Christians, in remaining faithful subjects of the Sultan, had not to apprehend any hostile demonstration. Mention was made at the meeting, of the new efforts made by the diplomatic agents, and particularly by Baron von Bruck and Colonel Weldenbruck, to retard the convocation of the present meeting, and to induce the Sultan to accept purely and simply the Vienna note.

"At the end of the sitting, the Sheik ul Islam affirmed to the minutes his fetvah, a sign which renders the decision sacred and irrevocable, and legalises the resolution that war was to be waged on Russia as long as her troops shall not have recrossed the Pruth.

The meeting, before separating, appointed a special committee for the purpose of receiving voluntary contributions for the expenses of the war. The Grand Visir, Mustapha Phasha, undertook to pay from his own resources 30,000 men; the Minister of War, 5,000; the staff of the army of Roumelia, 30,000 men; and all the ministers and high functionaries of state subscribed in proportion to their fortune. The Mussulman clergy declared that they abandoned their salaries to the army. From these facts, some idea may be formed of the sacrifices which Turkey is prepared to make for the purpose of defending the soverignty and independance of the Sultan."

A private telegraphic dispatch from Trieste of the 19th, contains Constantinople news of the 10th ult.

The Sultan has made a formal demand for the entrance of the two fleets into the Dardanelles' and the ambassadors of France and Great Britain have promised that the fleets shall come.

Prince Gortchakoff has ordered 3000 huts to be erected on the left bank of the Danube, and the Wallachian government has to pay 20,000 ducats for their construction. The commissariat of the Russian army is so infamously managed that sometimes there is no bread. From 10,000 to 12,000 men are constantly in the hospital with dysentery and typhus. A thing hitherto unheard of in the Russian service has occurred:—Generals Satler and Kotzebue have written to St. Petersburg and declared that, in consequence of the nonchalance of Prince Gortchakoff, the army will be ruined before the campaign begins. Prince Paskiewich is loudly demanded by the army.

VIENNA, Oct. 17.—A steamer from Odessa has brought the news that 30,000 Russians are immediately to be conveyed to Redout kale (in the Russo-Circassian province of Imerethi) within three days. General Zawadowski, the hetman of the Chernomorski Cossacks, has reached Anapa (Russian fortress on the coast of the Abasses) with 24,000 men.

FROM ITALY.

A letter from Florence of October the 12th, in the Parlamentero of Turin, states that Miss Cunninghame had to be forced out of prison, morally, at least, if not literally, since she would not accept of her liberty as a favor, but as a right.

The official who communicated to her the order for her liberation was obliged to inform her that he had full power to make her leave her prison, whereupon she demanded a certificate in due form, stating that she had been forcibly ejected.

Another letter says that the President of the Tuscan Council, Baldasseroni, wrote to M. Scarlott, the British Charge, that he hoped that what had lately occurred would be taken as a lesson; and that the Grand Duke was determined to exercise the utmost rigor of the law against all English offenders, especially against those offending against or intriguing in the slightest degree the laws respecting religion; that he was chiefly led into his merciful treatment of Miss Cunninghame through his esteem for her Britannic Majesty's Charge d'Affaires, and his appreciation of his treatment of the case; but that he warned him not again to reckon on such extraneous aid, as he was determined to show no mercy for the future.

FROM PARIS.

A number of political arrests have been made, among them, M. Goudchaux, a distinguished republican, and M. Marchais, secretary of the late M. Arago.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The Moniteur contains a decree granting an extraordinary credit of 5,000,000f. to the Minister of the Marine.

The ministerial report on which this decree is founded, states that France has at present two squadrons of 40 ships-of-the-line, with a proportionate increase in the number of steam frigates and corvettes. There is in the French navy a steam line of battle ship, the Napoleon; four with auxiliary power, completed; while nine others are being fitted for steam, and will be ready for sea within the next two months. Six new steam vessels, after the model of the Napoleon, are on the stocks, and will be launched about the end of 1854. The total of the French navy amounts to 161 vessels, manned by 52,625 sailors, gunners, and marines.

GREAT BRITAIN. SPREAD OF MORMONISM.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 22.—The departures from the port of London for the Australian colonies during the last week have been extremely numerous. They comprised, altogether, 24 vessels, including several of the larger class. Of the total number, there were 14 for Port Phillip, with an aggregate burden of 7,643 tons; 6 to Sydney, with an aggregate burden of 4,870 tons; 1 to Adelaide, of 734 tons; 1 to Hobart Town, of 648 tons; 1 to New Zealand, of 430 tons; and 1 to Launcestown, of 412 tons. Their total capacity was, consequently, 14,737 tons.

The ranks of the adherents to Mormonism are at present greatly strengthened, especially in Carmarthenshire, Glamorganshire, and other districts in South Wales. Numbers of these misguided people have lately joined the sect, including many persons of high respectability and middle class station. A well known Welsh lecturer, named Robyn Ddu, whose influence with the people is very great, has lately joined the ranks, and his eloquence seems irresistible. Immense numbers have lately left South Wales for the Salt Lake, and many are now preparing for departure in the spring.

THE STRIKE.—The dispute between the manufacturers and the operators of Preston has resulted in a strike, which has thrown 20,000 persons out of employment in that town.

AUSTRIA.

The official Wiener Zeitung has lately published an imperial ordinance relating to the legal rights of the Jews to possess property, in virtue of which the social disabilities of the Jews in Austria, such as they existed previous to the 1st of January, 1848, are renewed. The immediate effect of this ordinance is, that no Israelite is allowed to hold real estate in his own name. Previous to the year 1848, Jews could only possess landed property under trust—property could not be registered in their own names, but in the names of parties nominated by them, to satisfy the formality in question. This state of things is now restored.

The Cologne Gazette contains a letter from Vienna, which says: "Formerly the number of Jews at Vienna did not exceed 12,000, but at present they muster not less than 70,000. They have purchased several plots of land here, and have erected many houses on them. They have been lately thinking of building a new synagogue. The Deutsche Volkshalle expresses a hope that, in consequence of the late imperial ordinance, the Jews will be prohibited from erecting this synagogue, and that Vienna will continue to preserve the character of a christian capital.'

☞ Some years since an Englishman, whose pronunciation was tinged with cockneyisms, was sent to preach to the benighted and wicked Hoosiers of the little village of Elkhart in Indiana, which Greeley calls "a tidy, vigorous borough with a future before it."

He thus commenced his discourse; "Hin-abitants of Hel-kart, come to the halter."

THE BURNING OF THE HENRY CLAY—ACQUITTAL OF THE ACCUSED.

The proceedings in the case of the U. S. against Mr. Collyer, part owner, and the captain, engineer, and other officers, of the Henry Clay steamboat, on an indictment for manslaughter, for having by negligence caused the death of eighty-four passengers, terminated on Wednesday last, in an acquittal of the accused, after a trial which occupied fourteen days. The excitement which existed at the time of the unparalleled calamity has in a great measure calmed down, and the court did not present on any day during the trial an unusual number of spectators.

We make no comment at present on this transaction and the result of the protracted trial.—Eminent counsel were engaged on both sides; the fact was conceded that eighty-four human beings were precipitated at one fell swoop either into a watery grave or to a more agonizing death by fire; the officers of the vessel were indicted for causing that calamity by negligence, carelessness or inattention; witnesses were produced to prove the racing on the river; others deposed that she did not exceed her ordinary speed; counsel argued and summed up evidence; the judge charged the jury; the jury acquitted the accused, and the accused left the court to receive the congratulations of their friends, but with a wholesome lesson, we hope, and a never to be forgotten one, on the dangers of employing an undue amount of steam in the contest of speed where life may be immolated on the hollow altar of supremacy.—N. Y. Herald.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

A meeting of the Stockholders of the Pacific Railroad was held on Thursday last, at the Metropolitan Hotel New York, when the following gentlemen were elected Directors. They are among the heaviest stockholders in the concern: Levi S. Chatfield, Sandford E. Church, Orville Clark, Caleb S. Woodhull, of New York; Cyrus Moore, Maine; George Ashmun, Mass; T. Butler King, Ga.; Alfred Gilmore, Penn.; Francis M. Dimon, Rhode Island; Robert J. Walker, Washington; Elon Farnsworth, Mich.; William Noyes, Penn.; Jephtha Fowlkes, Tenn.; Thomas J. Green, California; Anson Jones, Levi Jones, W. R. D. Ward, Texas; James H. Lucas, Mo.; Isaac E. Holmes, South Carolina; Nathaniel T. Green, North Carolina; Philip T. Thomas, Md.; H. B. Spelman, Samuel Waggoner, Ohio; G. W. Underhill, Ark.; E. T. Bridge, New Jersey.

GAVAZZI'S LECTURE ON THE INQUISITION.

The Padre had a good, but not quite a full house, last night. His lecture was by request the repetition of one already delivered here, but a large number of new points were presented.—To-night he gives his last lecture in this city at the Melodeon; Subject "the Confessional," and a warning to America. He announced that he would treat the confession so that the ladies present might not be offended. He last night said that if it were not for the inquisition all Europe would now be free. His description of the tortures of the inquisition was exceedingly dramatic, and most horrible. Though the Americans did not think it, the inquisition existed among them in various forms. The Catholics had murdered hundreds of thousands of persons for opinion's sake. The Pope and the Devil were twin brothers. This very month he expected to be on his way to Europe, to attempt, with the blessing of God, to free his country from the fangs of the inquisition, and the oppression of the Pope.

In the latest news from Europe, we heard that complaints had been made to the Pope about the works of a certain father Gavazzi in America. What business had the Pope in America? Maybe he wished to agree with the President of the U. States to expel him (Gavazzi) from this country. He hoped that the Pope and President would never agree in anything. The meaning of this movement was to stir up a motive for riots in America—to excite the ignorant papists by a mandate from the Pope. We had also news that Dr. Kyle, an eminent Irish divine had come over to lecture in this country to check the proselytism of the Irish—too many of them were repudiating their ancient faith.

In conclusion, he was not a Protestant nor a Catholic—he was a Christian. He stood now as Martin Luther did in his day. A Protestant (as it signified to protest against despotism and popery) was a weak thing. He was a DISTRUSTER! He and his Italians would not protest against Romanism in their own dear land—they would destroy it, and be satisfied only with its annihilation. To-night he would give his farewell warning to Americans in this city.—Cin. Com.

THE FINISHING TOUCH.—Judge Bronson has written another letter to Mr. Guthrie, in which he finishes up the work of demolishing the poor Secretary. He has not left a rag to cover his nakedness, even the fig-leaf is stripped from him, and he stands exposed before the public in all his political deformity. He boldly meets the legal question raised by the Secretary that he had no right to appoint his subordinates, and shows conclusively that he had that right,—that it is guaranteed to him both by the Constitution and the laws regulating his duties, and that the Secretary had no right to interfere with his appointments, only so far as that right is specifically conceded. He even goes further and denies that the Secretary has any legal or constitutional right to remove him, that power resting only with the President. His letter is the most scathing rebuke of official insolence that we have every read, and if it does not make him appear as contemptible in his own estimation, as it certainly will in that of the public, it will be because he has lost all sense of self respect and propriety.—Detroit Tribune.

WORK CHALKED OUT FOR THE U. STATES.

A Spanish paper—La Paz, of Seville—in a remarkable article discussing the annexation of Cuba by the United States, thus foreshadows some of the consequences which would result from that initial measure:

It is incontestible, since the government at Washington has not taken pains to deny it, that the American Union aspires to the absorption of the Island of Cuba; and it is not less evident that once mistress of the greatest and richest of those European possessions, the acquisition of the others, or the repetition in all of them of the St. Domingo slaughter, would be no difficult matter.

Now, the loss of Cuba would import for England the loss of Trinidad, which commands the mouth of the Orinoco—that of Tobago, that of St. Lucia, Grenada, the Grenadines, Barbadoes, Dominica, Montserrat, Antigua, Nevis, St. Christopher, Anguila, the Virgin Isles, Jamaica, and the numerous Archipelago of the Lucca Islands.

It would import for France the loss of Guadeloupe, Martinique, Deseada, Los Santos, Maregalante, and part of St. Martin.

It would import for Holland the loss of St. Eustace, Java, Curacao, Oruba, and Buen Ayre.

It would import for Denmark the loss of San Juan and Santa Cruz.

It would import for Sweden the loss of St. Barthelemew.

It would import for the Emperor Soulouque the loss of Hayti.

It would import, in a word, for Europe, the complete abdication of her power, of her representation, of her influence, of her interest in the American seas and the absolute preponderance of the United States to whose strength nothing could, from henceforth, be opposed.

MARRIED.

JANUARY AND JUNE:

OR, OUT-DOOR THINKINGS AND FIRESIDE MUSINGS—by Benjamin F. Taylor. This volume consists of short sketches of familiar scenes in country life, in summer and winter. Many of these sketches have been copied in various magazines and newspapers in this country and in Europe.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Taylor's articles speak directly to the heart. They convey all who read them back to the time when childhood's merry hours were theirs, and life seemed naught but a never-ending battle with cares and troubles."—Chicago Daily Argus.

A FORTHCOMING BOOK.—It is announced that B. F. Taylor, Esq., is getting out a Book in New York, to be published [illegible] by S. Hueston of the Knickerbocker, entitled "January and June; or, Out-Door Thinkings and Fireside Musings." We venture the prediction that it will be regarded as one of the most pleasant books of the season, and have quite as great a run as Ik Marvel's best book.—Democratic Press.

The book is beautifully printed on fine paper, and illustrated with fine engravings. Having made arrangements to have the manuscript published, we are prepared to supply the trade at lowest cash prices by the dozen or hundred.

LOCAL MATTERS.

ELECTION.—To-day, occurs the regular November election for County Judge, Clerk, Surveyor, and School Commissioner. The polls will be opened throughout the city at 9 o'clock this morning and remain until sunset.

☞ Travelers going South this morning by the Rock Island Railroad, will observe by advertisement that the first class steamer Excel will leave La Salle for St. Louis this afternoon, on the arrival of the train.

RUSH MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Prof. Herrick delivered the opening lecture to the course of instruction in this Institution last evening, to the largest class of students that has ever been present on a similar occasion.—His subject was The Natural History of Man, which was discussed in a most interesting and eloquent manner. We learn that the class has requested a copy for publication.

☞ THE SACRED CONCERT, given by the Italian Opera Co., at Tremont Hall, last evening, was not as fully attended as it should have been by our music-loving citizens,—a delinquency doubtless occasioned by the extreme inclemency of the weather. To compliment the company would be supererogatory. Their reputation is sufficient to warrant the conviction that the Concert was of the highest order. Nevertheless, we cannot refrain from noticing the "Grand Aria and Chorus," in which Signora Rosa De Vries exceeded herself and carried the audience into ecstatic raptures. Also, the "Grand Prayer of Moses in Egypt," by the whole company, was thrillingly beautiful, and of itself worth more than the price of a ticket.

The Opera troupe go hence to Detroit, and we bespeak for them such a reception as merit deserves.

NEW LINE OF OMNIBUSES.—Messrs. S. B. & M. O. Walker have established a line of Omnibuses to run on Lake and State streets, in opposition to Parker & Co. Two new and handsomely finished Omnibuses (each costing $550,) from the extensive manufactory of E. C. Welsh & Co., were started yesterday morning, and will run regularly hereafter for the conveyance of passengers. We are not informed as to the time of departure from each end of the route.—Messrs. Welsh & Co. have the contract to build ten first class Omnibuses for Walker's Line; eight of them are already delivered, and are now running as follows: one on East and West Lake street; one on East and West Randolph street; four on North and South Clark streets, and two on Lake and State streets. The establishment of this Line will be of great service to those living on the outskirts of the city, and whose business requires them to be often "down in town;" it will also have the effect of making more of a demand for outside building lots for those who are at present unable to purchase inside property, on account of limited means.—We are always pleased to notice such enterprises, as it demonstrates that individuals see and understand what the community require, and such projects have a decided influence in promoting the growth and importance of our city.

LUXURIES.—We acknowledge the receipt of three as handsome specimens of the finny tribe as ever floated in salt water. They were sent to us by our friend HUGH S. BRAME, of the Washington Saloon on the corner of State and Randolph streets. Hugh has a fame as a public caterer that our compliments will not increase, therefore please accept our thanks.

☞ The little schooner Racine Clipper, of 11 tons burthen, arrived at this port last week from Manitowoc, where she was built two years since. She was towed to Bridgeport on Saturday, to pass through the canal, and down the Mississippi river to New Orleans, where she will be employed in the fishing business—the same occupation she has followed on Lake Michigan.

POLICE COURT.

Before Judge BUCKNER. There was a dozen of subjects up for justice yesterday morning—the cases being as follows:

Charles Sweetser, a young man, charged with being so helplessly drunk, as to require a state room in the Watch House. Fined $3.

Daniel McKeller, was found asleep under some freight cars in the Galena depot, on Saturday afternoon, drunk. Had with him $100 in gold—his condition rendered him an easy subject for pick pockets. Fined $2.

Daniel Kirby, has been up for drunkenness for three Monday mornings. Was let off with a fine of $3, and a promise of a term in the Bridewell if he is caught again.

Daniel Barnard, acknowledged that he "was a little drunk"—the only charge against him.—Fined $3.

Daniel Black—the fourth Daniel which "has come to judgment"—is employed as one of the crew of the steamer Traveler, but the Watch reported him as being engaged in a fight on Saturday night, in a dance house on North Water street. Fined $5, and the cost of two witnesses.

William Ward, was charged with being drunk on the wharf—admitted the fact, which lessened the costs. Fined $2.

George Thompson, got drunk on Saturday night in the Red Jacket Saloon, and while endeavoring to assist a drunken comrade home, was found by the Watch, both lying on the side walk. George used abusive language, and was escorted to the "lock up;" but what became of his comrade was not reported. Fined $1 and the costs of telling the story—$3 25 in all.

William Mangan, acknowledged he was found drunk, and paid $3 fine, and the costs of sitting in the Watch House.

Thomas McGinnis, a tailor, took more liquor on board than he could navigate with, and consequently was found lying on his beam end with head rigging badly damaged. Fined $3.

William Hughes, a sailor, has traveled 16 years, and has been earned but twice—once in Havre, the next time in Chicago—remarkable similarity between the two places! Intends never to be in a similar condition again—a good resolution, and it is to be hoped he will stick to it. Fined $3.

Samuel McIntyre and Margaret Martin, were found lying in an open lot near the corner of Wells and Kinzie streets, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, holding a "discourse." When first discovered, the Watchman thought them to be two cows! Both were fined $3, but Margaret having passed nearly half of the past two years in the Bridewell, was "sent up" for 30 days extra.

John Robertson, was complained of for being drunk, which he said was the effect of getting among friends. Fined $3.

John Sullivan, was also drunk, but said he was not often in the habit of getting so—which of course is a mitigating circumstance. Fined $2.

CHICAGO MEDICAL SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting of the members of the Chicago Medical Society will be held in the Common Council Room, this (Tuesday) evening the 8th instant, at half past seven o'clock, for the purpose of hearing the Secretary's Report of the doings of the Society for the past year, and electing new officers for the ensuing year. All who have contributed to the funds of the Society are members, and are requested to be present.

N. S. DAVIS, Sec'y.

☞ The propeller [illegible] has completed her repairs, and is again employed on the river, in towing. The Captains of Vessels will be glad to know that she is on duty, and need not fear of her shrinking to go outside in heavy weather. She is commanded by Capt. JOHN NOLAN. Success to her.

MARINE ACCIDENT.—The propeller Niagara, Capt Gephard, which left Buffalo on Tuesday evening last for Milwaukee and Chicago, with a large cargo of merchandise, broke her rudder post, and was compelled to return to Buffalo, on the following day for repairs.

NUT FOR SURVEYORS.

In last Saturday's Tribune has appeared Mr. Von Horn's reply.

Mr. Von Horn never employed me, neither did I apply to him for employment. I called on him to sign two surveys, both of which were formerly surveyed by him, and differed from his considerably. This made me read the laws of Illinois more carefully, and get the highest legal opinion in the city. From both sources I have learned that any surveyor may make a survey, and if found correct, it is as unalterable as the most accurate made by the county surveyor, and ten thousand times more legal than the Alterations [illegible] generally made by the county Surveyors. The laws of Illinois inform me "that the survey of a surveyor is conclusive, but may be revised by any competent tribunal."—It is well for the owner of the land on which Young built, otherwise he would have to locate a lot 460 feet nearer the city than the one he would get from Mr. Young. I challenge Mr. Von Horn to to point out one shade of an error in those two surveys, which he signed, or in any other that I have subsequently made after him. He informs the public that I was wrong in attributing these errors to him, and wants to shift them in an almost unintelligible manner on Mr. Thompson. Mr. V. H. surveyed the [illegible] and Young lots, both of which are wrong. He signed the Backerlike and Stanleway, where, had he put on his spectacles, and understood the first rudiments of surveying, he would have detected a great error. Here Mr. Von Horn has two horns of a dilemma—either he signed a survey without examining it, or he does not know surveying too well.

He seems to have great sympathy for me for being disabled. True I have lost part of my fingers and toes in a surveying expedition, in a cold climate where Mr. Von H. would not be capable of being lamp holder for one frosty night. Now I will bet a christmas goose that I will walk, run, lift and carry weights as well as he; and furthermore, that I can teach him mathematics and surveying for the remainder of his life. So much for my being disabled. From Mr. Von H.'s letter it appears that Mr. Young requested him to survey his lot, that he did survey it, and gave him a plat of said lot. Now he says that stakes could not be driven on account of the frost, and that Mr. Young did not call upon him again when he was going to build. From this it appears that no surveys can be made during the reign of Jack Frost. This excuse is too frosty to have much weight.

Mr. Van H. tied his horse to a post near the stone bridge, on block 42 section 7. He then planted stakes, and guessed as usual at the bad quality of the posts. The city surveyor found those subsequently and no other, AS THIS BLOCK, UP TO THIS DAY, HAS NOT BEEN SUBDIVIDED. This is a paradox, how Mr. Von Horn could find lots 7 and 8 in a block never subdivided.

In a few weeks a jury of those who knew him during the last 19 years will have an opportunity of showing him that the days of his [illegible] surveying are nearly gone, and that any other scientifically made surveyor can point out Mr. Von Horn's errors, and be the means of finding redress for the injured party. I can point out one hundred errors made by the county Surveyor. These I will bring to light in a few days, for the public good. If Mr. Von Horn has been here 19 years, he certainly ought to know how to survey a lot within one mile of him. He might commit an error at first when the frost was annoying; but what excuse does he give when he surveyed it a second time, under a summer's sun, and admitted that his survey was 30 feet out of the way. Perhaps it was then too warm. I have not written these lines to hurt his election. I am fond of mathematics, but not much inclined to politics. My politics are and will be, men capable of discharging their duties without regard to their political views. As for Mr. Thompson, I have not seen him during the last four months, neither have I spoken to him, for some time since last March. So much for Mr. Von H.'s hint as injuring him at the polls. In a pecuniary point of view I ought to support Mr. Von Horn, as he would be most likely to keep me employed in correcting errors.

I am truly yours,

MICHAEL M'DERMOTT.

LYON'S KATHAIRON.

☞ No article of any kind, will certainly none of its kind, ever acquired so rapid a celebrity, or won so general [illegible] of favor from all sections of the country, and from all classes of people, as Lyon's Kathairon for Beautifying, Preserving and Restoring the Hair. We find it an admirable antidote for Nervous Headache, and it speedily annihilates Eruptive Diseases of the Skin. We would advise all ladies who pride themselves upon their glossy ringlets, and all who are losing their hair, to use the Kathairon; they certainly can afford to, as it costs but 25 cents.

The Kathairon is sold throughout the world, by all dealers. D. S. Barnes, Proprietor, 161 Broadway, N. Y. no1

THE HUMOROUS SPEAKER:

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF AMUSING PIECES, both in prose and verse, designed for the use of schools, Literary Societies, Debating Clubs, Social Circles and Domestic Entertainment—by Oliver Oldham.

This Book is a fine combination of what is useful with what is agreeable. [illegible] Here are Dialogues, Recitations and Speeches, of every name and style, all full of fun, wit and humor, yet without vulgarity, and without evil tendency of any kind. The work is primarily for schools, but it is equally adapted to debating societies, home circles and private parties.

[From the New York Daily Times.]

"The selections are well made, and embrace extracts from the most humorous writers of England and America, with translations of the best of Yriarte's Fables, and Béranger's humorous lyrics. Thus the good things of Hood, Sam Slick, Horace Smith, Judge Haliburton, Hawthorne, Dickens, Holmes and the Ingoldsby Legends, are mingled with the best things of Coleman, Garrick, Goldsmith, Woolcot, and others of the last century. Great care has evidently been taken to admit nothing bearing the blemish of an equivoque or a double entendre."

[From the High and Eagle.]

"While it has the power to promote laughter, it does not do it at the expense of chastity, purity, or an elevated morality. It is a readable and agreeable book."

[From the Lutheran Observer.]

"If any one desires a book with which he may occasionally while away a dull hour over the finest witticisms, the best humorous compositions, and most amusing and entertaining instructive dialogues, &c. in the English language, here is the book that will suit him; and if there be any one who would as well as to cry, and the reader would prefer laughing at something neither vulgar nor demoralizing, he should buy this book."

☞ The retail price of the Humorous Speaker is one dollar, and the book is sent by mail to teachers, post paid, on their sending the publishers that sum.

☞ A liberal discount to those who purchase by the dozen or larger quantity.

BANK FAILURE.

BUFFALO, Nov. 7.

The Fabius Bank of this city stopped payment this morning. The suspension of the Bank was caused by large loans to the N. Y. City R. R., whose affairs are embarrassed. Mr. Fabius, the President of the Bank, is also President of the Road, and has assumed the liabilities in its behalf. There is much excitement here in consequence.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.

The steamship Crescent City, from New Orleans via Havana, arrived this morning.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.

A commission of American and British officers have been started to make a survey of the Isthmus for the construction of a ship canal. Lieut. Strong of the navy, takes command of the U. S. wing of the party.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

WHITE PIGEON, Nov. 7.

An unknown man was run over at this place by the freight train going East, at 3 A. M. His body was mangled in a shocking manner, being litterly torn to pieces.

NEW YORK Nov. 5th.

The Steamer Illinois sailed this P. M. for Aspinwall and the Prometheus for San Juan. They take out about 1300 passengers, and the steamer City of Glasgow sailed this morning with 200 passengers.

In the Supreme Court this morning Yankee Sullivan was summoned to take his trial before the court of Mass. for Prize fighting in that State and was delivered over to Sheriff William Myer for that purpose. Process is also out for the arrest of Morrisey, but he is said to have taken passage for England.

BUFFALO, Nov. 5th.

Rumors are current of the failure of a prominent Forwarding and Commission House on the dock: their liabilities are said to be large.

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS.

Small Pox generally begins with languor and weariness, chilliness and vomiting, soreness of the throat, great thirst, and many other unpleasant complaints.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills will be found the very best medicine in the world for the cure of Small Pox, because they cleanse the body from those morbid humors which are the cause of small pox and other eruptive complaints. From three to six of said Indian Vegetable Pills, taken every night on going to bed, will in a short time make a perfect cure of the above dangerous complaint, and the blood and other fluids will be restored to a state of purity.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills also aid and improve digestion, and therefore give health and vigor to the whole frame.

PROFESSOR ALEX. C. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, or Medicated Compound, for beautifying, curling, preserving, restoring and strengthening the hair, relieving diseases of the skin, curing rheumatic pains, and healing external wounds. Bounded by no geographical lines, the reputation of Barry's Tricopherous pervades the Union. The sales of the article of late years have increased in a ratio that almost exceeds belief. Professor Barry, after a careful examination of his sales book, finds that the number of bottles delivered to order in quantities, of from half a gross [illegible] during the year 1852 was within a fraction of 950,000.

It is unnecessary to present at length the evidence of the wonderful properties of the Tricopherous [illegible] have furnished such an endorsement as this. The design of the article, and the explanations given of its operation upon the hair, the scalp, and in all cases of cutaneous irritation, first recommended it to the attention of the people. This was all the inventor desired. Every bottle advertised itself. The effects of the fluid exceeded expectation. [illegible] extent hitherto unheard of as regards articles of this kind. [illegible]
